Finn Campbell-Notman: Empire of Light

Oil on canvas, 92 x 141 cm, 2021

ARTIST'S STATEMENT: "The palomar at the former Finca San Miguel is an ornate Modernista and palatial dovecote built at the source of a spring that for many years supplied the city of Almeria with water. The palomar is about one third the scale of a full-size building so that what surrounds it appears out of scale to it. It is at once a real place and one which appears unreal. Andalucia has been translated as The Land of Light. Despite having spent much time there I am a temperamentally northern painter, in a similar sense to that described by Jonathan Meades as interiors where 'nothing happens in a most emphatic way'... they persuade the viewer to wonder what is not being shown. And they imply a metaphysical mystery in places pregnant with possibility where something may or may not be about to happen."

Bristol Gallery Weekend

This March Bristol will be joining London, Paris, Madrid, Berlin, Milan, Oxford and Brussels by holding a Gallery Weekend.

The inaugural Bristol Gallery Weekend will take place from Thursday 21st until Sunday 24th March. Most of the contemporary art galleries and art spaces in the city will be taking part, and will be organising a programme of special events over the weekend, including talks, private views and family workshops.

Celebrating the city's diverse creative spaces, Bristol Gallery Weekend will be an opportunity to discover and explore Bristol's world-class art scene at a variety of art spaces, galleries, artist run projects and private art collections.

A map will be available in late February at all participating galleries and other cultural outlets, featuring information about the galleries, events, opening hours, exhibitions and artists.

Participating galleries include Art Park, Centrespace Gallery, Circular Artspace, Clifton Contemporary Art, Clifton Fine Art, D-Unit, Hidden Gallery, Hours, Huw Richards Evens, Ken Stradling Collection, Lime Tree Gallery, Livingstone St Ives, Martin Parr Foundation, North Street Gallery, Rainmaker Gallery, Royal Photographic Society, Serchia, Studio 74 Contemporary Art, and That Art Gallery.

Palooka 5: Metropolis

Taunton-based 'sci-fi surf band' Palooka 5 have been busy creating a 'live soundtrack' to accompany Fritz Lang's 1927 science-fiction classic Metropolis at two upcoming Wessex film festivals in Wellington and Bridport.

Set in 2025 the plot sees Metropolis as home to a Utopian society where its wealthy residents live a carefree life. Meanwhile, an underground world of workers run the machinery that keeps the world above ground functioning.

Palooka 5 songwriter Tim Baigent says: "This has been a very exciting new way of collaborating with the band, so much so that it will definitely be influencing the sound of our next album, due out on Spinout Nuggets next year."

BRIAN JACKMAN

Sherborne Travel Writing Festival

Curated by Rory MacLean, travel writer of more than a dozen books, an exciting programme of talks will inspire, excite, and motivate both armchair and intrepid travellers to broaden their horizons at Sherborne's second Travel Writing Festival.

This year's event responds to both yesterday's lockdown limitations and today's dramatic upsurge in international travel by welcoming to Dorset a sensational line up of writers and photographers who are rediscovering and redefining the world. Join them for an unforgettable weekend and be transported to the four corners of the globe via spellbinding stories and mind-broadening adventures. From 5th to 7th April, the Powell Theatre in Sherborne will be filled with top international travel writers, photographers, and radio and television personalities, covering exciting destinations such as Sicily, Kerala, China, the Brazilian Amazon, North Korea, Roman Gaul, Nigeria and Burma's Shan Hills.

For those that prefer to stay a little closer to home, the festival is delighted to launch the inaugural Writing Britain panel event on Saturday 6th April. On stage will be Dorset's own ecotourism pioneer Brian Jackman, Cornwall's Tim Hannigan and the Cotswold's Caroline Mills together with Hilary Bradt, whose 31 Slow Travel guides have opened up Britain's special places in their own unique way. Trek along the South West Coast Path, walk from the banks of the River Tamar to a family home near Land's End, ride across Dartmoor on a horse, indulge in cultural foraging or plunge into the sea at Durdle Door. Come along and share in the panel's enthusiasm and love for the British countryside.

To close the weekend hear veteran photojournalist and local resident, Don McCullin reminisce on his iconic black and white work, from 1950s London to the Vietnam War and everything in between.

To find out about the programme of talks and to buy tickets visit sherbornetravelwritingfestival.com. Tickets can also be bought at Winstone's Bookshop in Sherborne.

Paul Foot: Dissolve

Following a sold out Edinburgh Fringe run, multi-award-winning and trail-blazing comedian, Paul Foot, is back on tour with the critically acclaimed Dissolve, his most personal, surprising and ground-breaking show ever, and comes to Lighthouse Poole on Thursday 4th April.

Life is a stress: full of rushed breakfasts, angry people, internal conflict, and Jacob Rees-Mogg. But what happens when everything you thought was important - your problems, grievances against others, your very identity - simply disappears?

In the year 2022AD something momentous changed for Paul, and in this show he will reveal how he discovered the secret of life on the outskirts of Lancaster.* Inevitably, he does get distracted by King Tutankhamun, the House of Lords, Sir Cliff Richard, officious lollipop ladies and what Jesus might have achieved if he'd been a plumber.

4 April: Lighthouse, 21 Kingland Road, POOLE, BH15 1UG. 8pm. 01202 280000 / lighthousepoole.co.uk.

To be clear, Paul discovered the secret of life while he was located on the outskirts of Lancaster. Not the secret to living on the outskirts of Lancaster. There isn't an answer to that.*

JOHN HOYLAND 'UNTITLED' (Acrylic on canvas, 1963)

JOHN HOYLAND 'CONJUROR' (Ceramic, 1994)

John Hoyland: These Mad Hybrids

This exhibition positions a group of ceramic sculptures made by abstract painter John Hoyland in dialogue with a spectacular, international, assembly of contemporary sculpture by artists including Phyllida Barlow, Hew Locke, Caroline Achaintre and Eric Bainbridge.

Curated by sculptor Olivia Bax in collaboration with Sam Cornish and Wiz Patterson Kelly of The John Hoyland Estate, the exhibition is inspired by a group of unique ceramic sculptures by Hoyland, which he affectionately called his 'mad little hybrids'. This is the first public display of the ceramics since 1994, and their first presentation alongside Hoyland's abstract paintings from the 1960s to the 2010s.

The exhibition challenges the boundaries of what both sculpture and painting can be and how they speak to each other. The featured artists share a common fascination and appreciation for colour, materiality, and creative process. They work with materials ranging from cement or synthetic fabric to glitter, combining human and animal bodies, furniture, everyday objects and architecture into playful, bold, new sculptural hybrids.

OLD GODS / NEW MONSTERS

AN EXHIBITION OF SCULPTURES
BY JIM PILSTON

A collection of new work exploring the figures we've carried alongside us, down generations and through our lifetimes. Some familiar, The Green Man and Shiel Na Gig and some barely remembered, a face from a childhood story, a song or rhyme. All rendered in reclaimed materials, through the prism of Jim's creativity, drawing on the sacred, the profane, the childlike and the adult.

'EMOJI (LOVE EYES) - THE SUCCESSFUL REALIST'

Trish Morrissey

Trish Morrissey was born in Dublin, Ireland and lives and works in Somerset. Her practice combines performance, photography, and film. She uses a process of archival research as well as her own biography in order to develop and play real and fictional characters. The work explores the roles of women, the family and the body. Morrissey's distinctive motif is herself; she appears in all her photographs and films, playing contemporary and historical characters with whom she identifies, thus creating a kind of 'autofiction' whereby experiences from her own life are explored through the stories of others.

Morrissey's work is deeply sensitive and offers a subtle dialogue around first-hand experiences throughout the milestones of growing up, noting stories told or interpreted through family photographs and histories both past, present and ongoing. There is a quirky humour edging on squeamish subject matter which creates a sense of tension and suspension within the work. Here we see an artist collaborating with family and communities to produce an inclusive whole experience. She achieves this through astute observations of human behaviour and attention to detail, a precise master of composition, she interprets and sets theatrical dramatic scenarios for us to decode.

PAUL JUILLERAT 'PIA (PARTIALLY INTACT ARTEFACT)'

Royal Society of Sculptors: Casting Shadows

"This exhibition is a celebration of contemporary sculptural practice in all its many forms. From stone carving and casting to ceramics and found objects, sculpture is arguably the most diverse artistic medium. This gives artists unrivalled freedom in materials, process, form and scale and crosses boundaries between architecture, design, manufacturing and craft. Sculpture is a constantly evolving art form that pervades our lives like no other. It addresses our most innate creative desires to bring something tangible into being. It is our way of understanding the past, our place in time and a legacy to leave for future generations. The featured artists are Barbara Beyer, Rosalyn Burgin, Fiona Campbell, Martin Cody, Dallas Collins, Alice Cunningham, Deborah Duffin, Chris Dunseath, Jane Fox, Alice Freeman, Anna Gillespie, Nina Gronw-Lewis, Wen-Hsi Harman, Jane Jobling, Paul Juillerat, Seamus Moran, Susie Olczak, Kate Parsons, Mark Richards, Alice Sheppard-Fiddler, Christopher Summerfield, Jo Taylor, Nicola Turner, Patricia Volk, Tom Waugh, and Hamish Young."

'SHADOWS AND WHITE HORSE, ALTON BARNES' (Oil on canvas, 61 x 61 cm, 2019 - 2024)

David Inshaw: Remember

"David Inshaw is acclaimed for his resonant paintings of the English countryside, alive with light effects, trees, birds in flight, bonfires and figures not posing but caught up in their own inner lives. He has charted his life through poetic pictures that speak urgently to all of us who experience emotions and dramas. Now that he is in his 80s he is focused on touch points in the West Country landscape such as Silbury Hill, Stonehenge and the Devil's Den as well as churchyards and fireworks that haunt his memory and his dreams. As the loss of memory beckons, he is painting as strongly and poignantly as ever in works that are both intensely personal and universal in their potency."

23 March - 12 May: Sladers Yard Gallery, West Bay Road, WEST BAY, Bridport, DT6 4EL. Wednesday - Saturday 10am - 4pm. 01308 459511 / sladersyard.co.uk.

'PLOUGHED FIELD, HEDGE AND MOONLIGHT' (124 x 170 cm)

Andrew Hardwick

Painter Andrew Hardwick works out of a studio in Bristol, sited on land that has been farmed by his family for generations. The whole of the area around Royal Portbury and Avonmouth Docks are rich sources for his work. His practice is deeply embedded in the landscape he grew up in and he has seen enormous changes over the course of his life. He absorbs the seasonal changes and records the physical changes made by development and neglect. It is an ongoing concern, and change, quality of light and colour, and the pull of the vast skies absorb him.

Andrew's new exhibition, Wounded Land, in the Allsop Gallery at Bridport Arts Centre in Dorset is 'about a landscape awaiting development, sometimes a wasteland'. The feature painting, The Amazon Building, has a slash of pink across it, a departure both in palette and in subject matter. He doesn't often paint buildings. Other works in the show continue to engage with the wild untamed areas that he loves.

In addition to Bristol, he gravitates towards the wild areas of Dartmoor. His long walks there, alone, getting cold and lost, allow him to 'get somewhere inside my head where I wouldn't normally get to'. The solitude gives him time to spend a lot of time thinking, and together with playing with stuff on his return to the studio leads into his often monumental paintings. Rearranging materials together with snapshots taken on his walks are for him the equivalent of a sketchbook. Where other artists draw on paper he does so in three dimensions, although occasionally he will take a wander in the fields and draw some sheep.

There is a huge element of three-dimensionality in his paintings. He uses plastics, glues and varnishes and bits of timber roofing materials. He pours recycled decorator's paint onto netting and other leftovers from the farm. These build into layer upon layer of accumulated memory which add to the weight and sculptural feel of his work. Sometimes he adds a toy sheep: 'Some of the places I paint we used to farm and now are under cement. There is a poignancy to the childhood sheep which no longer exist.' The addition of a three-dimensional toy animal works better than a superimposed drawing, creating a further layer of texture. 'It's a recipe, cutting things up and making something. A walk does that in an isolated place.'

Hardwick's barn studio is a place for thinking, making, destroying, and rebuilding. Often accompanied by a noisy cockerel wandering backwards and forwards, he nevertheless needs the sound of a human voice which he will supply by listening to the radio. As paintings progress to a critical stage he switches to classical music, he rarely works in silence. Not for him the pristine white canvas or piece of paper, his preferred starting point is an already abandoned painting which can be reworked, savaged with vigour, and out of that deliberate chaos emerges a new work. The rigour comes from his adherence to his original idea, 'I have an agenda that I want to follow, so that is the control'.

Despite his passionate attachment to painting the land, he sees it as 'an excuse to paint the sky', and yet the very physicality of the works seem to mask conventional perceptions of cloud. His paintings are lyrical and all enveloping. They are predicated on his familiarity with the places he paints: 'If you visit somewhere you are just looking at it. If it is a landscape you know, you are painting yourself within it.'

He cites Paul Nash's 'gentle' landscapes and the work of Eric Ravilious as thought provoking and influential. Despite these anchors he likes a bleak, 'awkward' landscape. He responds to the broken and dysfunctional rather than the picturesque. His work exudes a deep engagement with landscape through painting unremarkable things and detail just for pure love. It is undoubtedly a love affair with the land.

LOUISE BALAAM 'BRIGHT LIGHT FROM CARN BREA' (Oil on canvas)

Louise Balaam: Under Ancient Skies

"Louise Balaam is a painter of expressive, gestural landscapes, which communicate an intense emotional response to the experience of being in the landscape. For this exhibition she explores ancient sites - standing stones, megaliths, hill forts. The exhibition includes paintings from County Kerry, based on Louise's 2023 residency there where she was profoundly affected by the wild and melancholy landscape, as well as Dorset, Pembrokeshire, and Cornwall."

Housework

"Sherborne House has a long association with arts and culture, from its literary links with McCreedy and Charles Dickens, its use as a school and more recent past as a gallery and art café. Over the years 1996 to 2008 Sherborne House was host to an arts programme led by a dedicated team of artists wanting to support the Sherborne House Trust in development of the building as a centre for the visual arts. This show brings together some of the work created by artists during that period - works that have documented and responded to its past or where the house was a catalyst for exciting projects and new commissions exploring both historical and contemporary arts practice. Photographs, textiles, paintings and installations placed around the building lead you to explore the different rooms and find out about its past and the recent dramatic restoration transforming the house from the ubiquitous school magnolia to the rich colours of past interiors. The drawing room invites the audience to browse the archive and a White Room Art Café event makes full use of the new restaurant and pavilion area."

27 April - 13 July: The Sherborne, Sherborne House, Newland, SHERBORNE, DT9 3JG. Tuesday - Saturday 11am - 5pm, Sunday 11am - 4pm. thesherborne.co.uk.

Our EVOLVER SPONSORS make Evolver Magazine possible. We couldn't do it without their ongoing support and advertising, so we make sure they get priority coverage in these pages.

If you'd like to join them, please email simon@evolver.org.uk to find out about our Sponsorship offer (for example our quarter page Evolver Sponsors pay £175 instead of £250 for each bi-monthly advert).
